CHAMPIONSHIP
Setting The Standard.

On the pool production line we have a station that does slates, slates, slates all day long. For efficiency, we keep slate-width rolls of backed cloth for them to cut off and use for each covered slate. No leftover.

Away from the pool line is a station that does cushions, cushions, cushions all day long. For efficiency, we keep 6" rolls of unbacked cloth for them to cut off and use for any covered rails. No leftover.

This is why when asked "can I just cut some off the bed cloth to use on the cushion rails? How much?" we don't have an easy answer. Sure, you could probably order an extra yard, but then you have to measure and cut carefully and peel off the backing. Separate bed and rail cloth seems odd; but it works for us. You save the price of paying someone to bag up precut packs, and we think it will work for you too. Try it.
